Pluto can I talk to you? (Private)

moonsparrow28

Hi! I know you don't know me but I wanted to say that I can relate with you and everything will be okay in the end. I saw your post about your parents getting divorced and I can relate. My parents got divorced four years ago; I won't go into detail as to why but they did. Someone once told me that the things you go through not only makes you stronger but makes you who you are today and instead of pushing the problems away like it never happened you can be a inspiration to others by facing them and not making them grow your heart cold. I'm here if you want to talk but I don't expect you to since you don't know me.

I don't mean to crash, but I think part of me can relate to this. My biological parents were divorced, so for 6 years of my life, I was raised alone. Pluto, if you ever want someone to talk to, talk to people you trust. Don't forget you are loved by many. Don't let this experience drag you down, see it as an eye-opener, so if someone else is going through this, you can help.

I will not linger in this post any longer, but I just wished to share some advice for Pluto.

I'm sorry to hear that Pluto. Have you tried convincing your parents to keep you and Nacho together? That might help at least. You can always refuse to be separated from him.
